Jeff Leshay : How to Launch Your Career in TV News before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised How to Launch Your Career in TV News:

Describes the work of news reporters, producers, assignment editors, and news directors, tells how to get started in broadcast journalism, and covers resumes, interviews, salaries, and ethics.

From Booklist In the very competitive business of TV news, your first job will be the most difficult to acquire. Leshay has wisely used a good portion of his text to advise the reader on the ins and outs of the job search and interview preparation. Candid descriptions from prominent individuals add to this excellent resource. The appendix includes undergraduate and graduate programs and scholarships. Bibliography. Kathy Bonnar
